While the work of rescue was in progress the firemen and police were making a joint inquiry to determine the cause of the disaster and whether any person was responsible for it. The information which they received satisfied them that the floor that collapsed was overweighted. floor that collapsed was overweighted. Contract or Keegan said: "What caused the accident is a mystery to me, but I am positive that it did not result from overweighting the floor. As fast as the bricks and rubbish were gathered, they were lowered into the street and cartied off."

There were five men working on the floor when it fell, besides those mentioned as being killed and induced. They managed to scramble across to the main building as they felt the floor sink beneath them, and thus saved themselves.

Among the first to reach the scene of the disaster were fathers Daly and Cunnion, of St. Raphael's Church, at Tenth-ave, and Fortieth-st. They hastened from the parish-house at the first report of the accident. As the injured men were extricated from the ruins and carried out, the priests gave them the comforts of their religion. To those who appeared mortally wounded extreme unction was administered before they were placed in the ambulances.

THE KILLED AND INJURED.

The following men were killed: CULLEN, Hugh, aged twenty-five, address unknown.

The dust that rose from the ruins of the houses in Orchard-st. had hardly settled before rescuers were at work trying to extricate the buried men The firemen were also summoned, and in a few minutes several of the bricklayers were dug out of the rules. One of them had his back broken, and he was unconscious when placed in an ambulance. He was William Wilkinson, aged twenty-one, of Astoria. Close beside where he was found, two brothers, Frank and John Thornton, were rescued. Frank was an apprentice lad. He fainted in the arms of the man who dragged him out, after murmuring: "Please look out for my brother." When examined by an ambulance surgeon it was thought that neither of the brothers was fatally injured, but Frank died about midnight at the Gouverneur Hospital. The dismantled beams and the pile of brick and mortar formed such an intricate mass to disentangle that the work of resucing the men was necessarily slow. Their cries could be plainly heard, however. One poor fellow was taken out with both legs broken. He was recognized by the other workmen as George Gamble, aged thirty-eight, of No. 168 West Ninety-eighth-st. | ;

BRAVE RESCUE OF AN ITALIAN. The most difficult task encountered was in the rescue of Joseph Barbara, one of the Italians who was working in the cellar when the collapse occurred. There was several feet of rubbish bearing upon him, but he was still conscious when reached. While being dug out of the pit several of his fellow-countrymen stood above and shouted encouraging words to him in his native language, while an ambulance surgeon from Gouverneur Hospital knelt by his side administering stimulants. It was two hours after the building fell before the imprisoned man was finally released from his terrible position. He was the last one rescued. The moment the building fell in, an urgent call was sent to Bellevus and Gouverneur hospitals for ambulances, and there were four on the scene before the first man was carried out from the ruins. The injured men were hurried to the hospitals as fast as they were rescued. The wrecked buildings include No. 151 to 157 Orchard-st., and have been in course of contruction for ten weeks. The work had reached the fifth floor when the crash came. The owner of the buildings is William F. Lennon, a builder, whose office is at No. 124 East Eighty-fourth-st., and lives office is at No. 124 East Eighty-fourth-st, and fives at No. 21 West Ninety-third-st. The contractors for the work are Peter Coomes and John C. Gleave. Mr. Coomes lives at No. 1,629 Park-ave., and Mr. Gleave in Astoria. Both of the contractors and the owner were present at the time of the accident. They were placed under arrest by Captain Cortright, and sent to the Eidridge-st. station. The charge made against them was "criminal negligence, Mr. Lennon was released on bail, Henry Degnan, of No. 331 Park-ave, becoming his bondsman. The contractors remained in prison.

POOR WORK, CAPTAIN CORTRIGHT SAYS. Captain Cortright made a careful inspection of the ruined buildings. He found that the mortar used felt like wet sand and did not seem to be of the proper quality. #### The Corset at the Paris Academy.

At one of the late meetings of the Academy of Medi-cine, a long and important discussion took place on the use of the corset, of its danger or its harmlessness, and the learned Assembly expressed itself highly in its favor.

Ladies, with their refined sense of feeling, which guide them in matters appertaining to beauty, did not wait for this verdict before making use of the Corset as an indispensable aid. By the use of the Corset, they have tried to obtain for themselves that beauty which has been praised and sune by poets of all times.

Now, for suppleners as well as for hygiene, one must know how to choose a Corset. For some years past real whalebone has become so rare, and, therefore, so expensive that the trade was forced to replace it. Among the palliatives employed there are some which we advise all ladies who wish to take care of their beauty, their health and almost their life, never to use. Let them be very careful of steel whalebones—two words which have no right or reason to be coupled together—banishing inexorably their employment either in their Corsets or in their bodiese. Under a hypocritical covering which at sight and touch gives it the appearance of simple whale-one is hidden some heavy, and in certain cases, dangerous object.

Contractor Coomes sais, that in his opinion the accident was due to the sinking of one of the iron beams, caused by the cracking of the granite block on which it rested. He also denied that the buildings had been put up in "Buddensiek" style, and insisted that only the best material was used. He said that Inspector Timothy J. Ormsby, of the Building Department, inspected the work last Wednesday, and found everything satisfactory

After the firemen had rescued Barbara it was evident that no one cise could be alive beneath the ruins, and work was discontinued. Notice was sent to T. P. Galligan, the Fire Department's contractor, to have a force of laborers proceed with the task of removing the mass of beams and brick. Galligan arrived at 6 o'clock with a large force of workmen who set diligently to work to dig out the ruins. It was supposed that James Ross, the missing Italian, was still in the ruins, and a careful search was made.

RUMORS ABOUT MISSING MEN.

The wildest rumors prevailed around the ruins time-keeper for Coomes & Cleaves and all those who had held responsible positions in the building who had heaf responsible positions in the banding had disappeared. The general impression, however, was that James Ross, Herman Schumann, of No. 286 Amsterdam-ave, and two other hodearriers were in the ruins. Up to 11 o'clock no trace of these had been found there, and a number of people had visited the police station with the news that they were missing from their banes.

One other man who is missing, although he had not been in the building at the time of the hollapse, was Ormsby, the building inspector, who was alleged by the contractors to have inspected the building only three days ago and pronounced the work all right. He was not at his home, No. 152 Leonard-st., and his wife said he had not been there. The police were looking for him, but were unable to find him.

THE CITY CLUB STANDS FIRM.

FAILURE OF AN EFFORT TO ALLOW ITS OFFICERS AND TRUSTEES TO HOLD PUBLIC OFFICE.

The City Club's meeting, held last night in the clubhouse, No. 677 Fifth-ave., was called to act on an important constitutional amendment and to disconstitution provides that no officer or trustee of the club may accept a public office while his term of office lasts, nor within one year after his term of office has expired. A violation of this constitutional restriction will subject the member to expulsion. The amendment offered was to the effect that any that his committee actually had not met. Lieu that his committee actually had not met. Lieu trustee may be relieved from the action of this clause by the affirmative vote of four-fifths of the board at a meeting called for that purpose on a notice of not less than five days. After much discussion the club refused to accept the amendment, and the trustees and officers of the City Club may not be candi lates and officers of the City Club may not be candidates for public office.

After the amendment had been declared lost, a motion was made to release W. Bayard Cutting from his obligation in order that he may accept the office of Civil Service Commissioner. As the meeting was called for a special purpose, and as the relief of Mr. Cutting from his obligation was not officered for a pocial purpose, and as the relief of Mr. Cutting from his obligation was not officered for a special purpose, and as the relief of Mr. Cutting from his obligation was not officered for a four-headed for a special purpose, and as the relief of Mr. Cutting from his obligation was not officered for the first that time Senator Lexow will renew his motion that they be made a special order for Wednesday next. INTEREST IN THE FATE OF A BRIDGE. Fall River, Mass., March 1.-Word was received here to-day of the breaking of the iron pile bridge across Westport River by an icefloe about acres in extent, which crashed against the abutments of the draw. There is much interest taken in his bridge in engineering circles from the fact that t was built on cast-fron piles driven into sait water where a very stiff tide runs. The tidal wave of a few weeks ago disarranged a part of it, and to-lay was its first encounter with thick ice.

ARRIVED IN PORT WITH A HUNGRY CREW. The American bark Annie Reed, Captain Welt, arrived here last evening from Rosario, Argentina after a voyage of seventy-one days, with a cargo of hides and wool for Flint & Co. On the morning of February 8 the wind, which had been blowing a hard gale all night, increased to a burricane, dur-ing which the martingale and headstays were carried away and the bark was obliged, in order to save the bowsprit, to run before the gale. The seas save the bowsprit, to run before the gale. The seasrose to an enormous height and the wind was blowing with terrific force, accompanied by a driving snewstorm. The vessel was iced up by the flying spray and water fulling on the decks and fre-zing.
The crew was kept constantly at work clearing the ice, but for twenty-four hours it was difficult work.
The vessel ran off until the gale molerated and was driven so far out of her course that on her arrival she was so short of provisions that Captain.
Welt obtained permission at Quarantine to go to

doubtful compliance with the provisions of the Constitution. The so-called appointment leaves no discretion to the appointing officers, and is in no sense an exercise of discretion.

By this method, the trustees making the appointment have no choice. If bi-partisan boards of police commissioners or other local governing boards are deemed necessary in the administration of local government, provision should be made for ascertaining and respecting the will of the people in their choice of officers. This can be very easily accomplished by providing that no elector shall vote for more than two candidates, and that the four candidates receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared elected. This will provide for minority representation and will permit candidates receiving the highest number of votes to occupy the possitions for the willage upon State and National issues at the last preceding general election can scarcely be of much consequence in determining questions of mere local administration. Local issues are usually quite different, and the people should be allowed to express their will, and their will should be respected without regard to be the votes at a prior election upon other broader and different issues.

It seems to me like a plain violation of the principle of home rule to limit the selection of Police Commissioners to members of the two great political parites without regard to local improve organizations which may be formed for the purpose of carrying into effect local policies which the people may deem important.

which effect local policies which the people may deem important.

I am informed that the Arsembly recently adopted a resolution unanimously declaring its adhesion to the principe of home rule for the various municipalities of the State, and that municipal officers other than inspectors of election) should be elected by the people, or appointed by the May'ars or other elected officers of each municipality. It seems to me that the Legislature should adhere to this principle, and in all legislation affecting municipalities provision should be made for home rule in its broadest sense by permitting the people to express their will freely on public questions, and by permitting them to choose their own officers without regard to the issues or the existence of political parties at any previous time.

Albany, March 1 (Special) -It is now suspential the Free Pass bill, which was passed in on Wednesday through the efforts of Speaker Hamilton Fish, did not receive some of the votes recorded for it. Mr. Van Keuren, of Ulster, for one, asserted upon the floor of the House to-day that he had not voted for the bill, although he is recorded in the affirmative on the journal When the member from Ulster found himself on The Tribune's list of those who had voted for the bill, he asked for a correction. He was indignant when told that The Tribune list was correct according to the journal of the house. Mr. Van Keuren declared that he was not present in the Assembly hamber when the Braun bill was passed, and that if he had been he -ould have voted against it. He said he had voted to kill the bill when it came up on second reading. The member from Ulster corded as having voted for the bill. He returned to and moved to correct the journal.

the bills passed were the following:
Senator Collin's, empowering Troy to issue $160,600 bends for street improvements.

Mr. Miller's, authorizing the procusing of new grounds and the erection of new buildings for the College of the City of New York.

E. O. Stewart's, reorganizing the Board of Trustees of Cornell University.

J. N. Stewart's, making the office of the Chief of Police elective in the village of White Plains.

Senator Wolf's, giving all veterans employed in public offices a vacation on Memorial Day.

Mr. Ainsworth, as soon as the Senate bill had been announced from the desk, moved to ad vance it. Mr. Abell promptly objected. He moved to refer the bill to the Committee on Prisons. He said that the Assembly committee which had been named to investigate the various State offices had not yet taken up the question of abolishing this one. The committee was about to consider the matter, when in came bills to abolish two or three of the offices.

Mr. Abell's argument made no impression, and his motion received not a single vote when the Speaker put the question. The bill was then passed. The Finance Committee had shown that the office was a useless one, and that the moneya for discharged convicts could be handled just as well by the wardens of the prisons.

CO-OPERATIVE LOAN ASSOCIATIONS Albany, March 1. The State Superintendent e-Ranks to-day transmitted to the Legislature the annual report for 1894 on co-operative savings and loan associations. Nineteen new associations were organized during the year, and thirty-three wen out of business. Three hundred and ninety-three associations reported during the year, showing total assets of $45,025,735, and total receipts during the year amounting to $22,973,991. The expenses of thes associations were $946,778.

The examinations show that in many cases there is a great laxity in the matter of official bonds. In several cases the examiner found that the association had no bank account, but that its eash was kept by its treasurer in with his own moneys and kept by its treasurer in with his own moneys and used by him in his own personal business transactions.

There are in this State," says the superintendent, "despite the official condemnation by the courts of the various States and the postal authorities, so-called 'mamerical bone' or 'multiple bone' associations, 'based upon the law of averages,' etc., and attempts are constantly being made by them to obtain official recognition. Some such, organized by citizens of this State, are transacting business in this State which cannot fail ultimately to bring loss to their patrons. Their scheme is a fraud on the great majority of members, deceptive in its promises, expressed or implied; stimulates an unhealthy gambling instinct, and is absurd as a business proposition.
